PRESS SHEET

Le Figaro Économie — 4 September 1995

“Restaurants: openings set the pace of hiring” · sector article (fast food / employment).

Summary

Back-to-work overview of employment in fast food: the chains hire at the pace of their openings.

McDonald's dominates by far — more than 60 openings in France over the year, around thirty more planned by December, hence the recruitment of around a hundred assistant managers. Burger King (8 restaurants) and Pizza Hut (around thirty) trail far behind.

Key figures

- McDonald's: more than 60 openings in France in 1995, ~30 more before the end of the year.
- ~100 assistant manager positions to fill.
- Burger King: 8 restaurants opened; Pizza Hut: ~30.

Significance for the case file

Background document: it establishes, in the national press, McDonald's pace of expansion in France in 1995 — the very year in which its competitor Quick set up in Antibes and the “economic war” began for Collorafi.
