SUMMARY SHEET

Letter from McDonald's France — Denis Hennequin · 25 April 1997

Overview: short letter sent by Denis Hennequin, of McDonald's France, to Mr and Mrs Collorafi, dated Guyancourt, 25 April 1997.

Key points

This is a courtesy letter in which the author thanks Bernard and Olga Collorafi for their invitation to the inauguration of their Antibes restaurant. He apologises for being unable to attend owing to his professional commitments and sends the addressees, as well as their whole team, his best wishes for the success of this new opening. He states that he wishes to visit them as soon as possible to discuss this opening with them. The tone is warm and personal.

Significance

The document shows relations that were still cordial between the franchisee and a senior figure at the franchisor in spring 1997, before the subsequent deterioration of relations that would lead to the litigation.
